Lisa Moten: How long have you been working at the Erma Byrd Center?

Linda Birchfield-Modad: Since the Erma Byrd Center opened in 2007.

Lisa Moten: What role do you serve at the Erma Byrd Center?

Linda Birchfield-Modad: I represent Marshall University and provide administrative support while assisting our students (and others) in a kind and productive manner. I also manage course schedule placements and events for each institution through-out the semesters.

Lisa Moten: What do you like most about working at the Erma Byrd Center?

Linda Birchfield-Modad: There are many positive aspects to the Erma Byrd Center. The instructors and staff (of all institutions housed here) work together with respect. Our mission is to help the students achieve their academic goals.

The Erma Byrd Center is a clean environment and it is convenient for students who would otherwise need to travel to our Marshall University campus in Huntington or South Charleston.
